VISITORS LEAD FROM START

Bill Donovan Invincible Until His Team Gets a Good Lead-Hank Gehring Batted Freely, Although He Made a Good Showing in First Few Innings-The Score.

The Detroit champions tightened their hammerlock on the American League pennant by trimming the Nationals yesterday in the final game of the series. As the Athletics beat Cleveland, the Tigers did not increase their lead over the Philadelphians, but one more victory and the 1907 title will be the undisputed property of Hughey Jennings and his trusty henchmen. The game was little more than a repetition of the closing game of Tuesday's double-header, as the Tigers led from the start with the Nationals nowhere. Believing that more work and less rest will keep Bill Donovan primed for the series with the Chicago Nationals, Jennings used his prize twirler, and the big fellow continued the great pitching which has placed him in the front rank of the foremost pitchers in the game. In the first four innings Washington got only one safety, and that did not go out of the infield, but from the fifth on, with a Detroit victory assured, Donovan eased up somewhat, and the Nationals garnered nine hits in the last five innings.

Gehring Batted Freely.

Hank Gehring was in the box for Washington, and he pitched fairly good ball for a while, but the Tigers eventually got on to him, and won as they pleased.

The crowd did not number more than 2,000, and, while there was little to enthuse over, the spectators seemed satisfied to admire the gingery tactics of Hughey Jennings, who continued to whoop it up to the very last inning, despite the fact that his team had the game cinched before half the distance had been traveled.

After the first six batters had gone out in order, Cobb started the second inning the lead. for Detroit by getting down to the bag ahead of the ball after pushing a slow roller toward first. Rossman sacrificed, and Cobb scored on Schmidt's safe driv

In the fifth Schmidt beat out a hit to the pitcher, and made second on O'Leary' single to center. Donovan attempted to sacrifice, and Gehring got the ball, b instead of throwing to first, he heaved against the bleachers, two men scoring and Donovan reaching third, from whice place he scored on Schaefer's out.

Three in the Sixth.

Ty Cobb opened the sixth with a clout to right, and stole second and third. Rossman fanned, but when Coughlin grounded to short Cobb was run down between third and home. Schmidt's triple drove Coughlin in, and successive double by O'Leary and Donovan accounted for the third run of that inning.

In the seventh with one gone, Crawford struck out, but Blankenship dropped the ball. Cobb's single and an out sent Crawford across the plate, and in the ninth Rossman, after having hit to left and stolen second, scored on Coughlin's safety to right.

Washington's first run came in the sev enth when Delehanty and Kay singled. The Martinsburg recruit was forced by head. In the eighth Gehring tripled, and was driven in by Delehanty.
